the aim of this book is to restore to the story of englishness the lively material interactions between words bodies plants stones metals and soil among other things that would have characterized it for the early medieval english themselves in particular each chapter demonstrates how a productive collapse or fusion between place and history happens not only in the intellectual realm in ideas but is also a material concern becoming enfolded in encounters between early medieval bodies and a host of material entities through readings of texts in a wide variety of genres including hagiography heroic poetry and medical and historical works the book argues that englishness during this period is an embodied identity emergent at the frontier of material and textual interactions that serve productively to occlude history religion and geography the early medieval english body thus results from the rich encounter between the lived environment climate soil landscape features plants and the textual discursive realm that both determines what that environment means and is also itself determined by the material constraints of everyday life
